

‘WHATS MAKES A GOOD DAV CHAPTER OFFICER?’

1. A good officer is a free thinker more often than not. They know the tried and true methods, but always remains open to something revolutionary. They adapt and quickly to implements new ideas.
2. A good DAV officer knows there chapter and uses it effectively. They keep in contact with their comrades so they can rapidly adjust and improvise when needed.
3. The DAV officer should persuade the opportunity and be able to read, understand and gain control of a situation before it gets out of hand.
4. A good officer repentance there chapter and should keep up there appearance and hygiene, not only at meetings, but when they are with others.
5. A good DAV officer will always have the welfare of there comrades come first and foremost with there safety and well being.
6. They are the person willing to go the extra mile, one who knows how to follow orders as well as give orders.
7. An officer of the chapter should have common sense, an educational background and knowledge of DAV bylaws.
8. An officer must put themselves in the minds of there comrades. And do not ask more of them than they can do themselves.
9. They should let there comrades think for themselves; they should not try and think for them.
10. An officer should trust there comrades and motivate them to trust them.
