Our sincere thanks to Past Commander John Eakins and his family for constructing, locating and maintaining these collection boxes. The project has been a tremendous success as a service program for our community and a great way to put our best foot forward in public relations.

Since John is moving too far north to commute conveniently, Past Vice Commander Doug MacPherson will assume the servicing and maintenance of the collection boxes. Charlie Battery, 145th Field Artillery of the Utah National Guard has generously given us their assistance in folding the flags in preparation for their public retirement ceremony. We can't thank the soldiers of Charlie Battery enough for what they have contributed. Noting what a heavy workload this was putting on a single company-sized unit, the Guard's Headquarters has agreed that they will continue to provide their help but the workload will be distributed among Guard units around the state.

If you know of a business or public organization with a well trafficked location that would like to have one of our collection boxes placed with them, please contact Doug with the information but do not make a commitment before you talk to him.
